

Beast Breathing

“Warrior of Breathing” — the Bloodfang Form

“You think too much, little storm. The beast does not think. The beast moves, and the beast is already behind you.”

— the lesson Stabby finally understood

Some warriors learn to still the storm inside them. The Warrior of Beast Breathing learns to ride it. Where other monks seek calm, this form reaches into the wild, animal heart of the fighter — the part that does not hesitate, does not flinch, and does not stop. Practitioners breathe in time with a racing heartbeat rather than a slow one, and when they ignite their breath, their blade glows blood-red and their body moves with the loping, unstoppable grace of a hunting beast.

It is a form born of survival rather than discipline — favored by those who grew up where the strong eat and the slow are eaten. To master it is not to tame the beast, but to become it on command, and to remember how to set it down again afterward.

Beast Breathing Features

Monk Level	Feature
3rd	Beast Breathing
6th	First Fang: Devour
11th	Advanced Beast Breathing
17th	Third Fang: Apex Predator

Level 3 — Beast Breathing

Monk Weapons. For you, a katana (and any sword you take up as your signature blade) counts as a Monk weapon. You can use your Martial Arts die with it, make Bonus Action Unarmed Strikes alongside it, and use all this subclass’s features through it.

Beast Sense. Your senses are sharp as a hunting animal’s, even out of combat. You have Advantage on Wisdom (Survival) checks to track creatures, on Wisdom (Perception) checks that rely on smell or hearing, and on Charisma (Intimidation) checks (there is something feral in you).

Igniting the Breath. When you roll Initiative, you can spend 1 ki point to ignite your breath for the rest of the combat (until the combat ends, you have the Incapacitated condition, or you choose to end it as a Free Action). Your weapon glows blood-red and deals an extra 2 bludgeoning damage on every hit.

Beast’s Vigor. While your breath is ignited, your Speed increases by 10 feet and you have Advantage on Dexterity saving throws (the wild reflexes of a cornered animal).

Level 6 — First Fang: Devour

First Fang: Devour. As a Bonus Action, you can spend 1 ki point to move up to 15 feet without provoking Opportunity Attacks and make one weapon attack with your monk weapon. On a hit, the attack deals 3d8 + your Dexterity modifier bludgeoning damage. If this attack reduces the target to 0 hit points, you regain the ki point you spent.

This replaces your Flurry of Blows as your Bonus Action for the turn. You still take your full Attack action separately.

Level 11 — Advanced Beast Breathing

Advanced Breathing. Your ignited breath grows fiercer. While it is active you gain all its original benefits, and now also gain Resistance to Bludgeoning, Piercing, and Slashing damage. In addition, your weapon's bonus damage increases from +2 to +3.

Sharpened Fang. The damage of your First Fang: Devour increases to 5d10 + your Dexterity modifier.

The beast does not bleed easily. With your breath lit, blades and arrows seem to slide off you as you wade into the fight.

Level 17 — Third Fang: Apex Predator

Third Fang: Apex Predator. As a Bonus Action, you can spend 3 ki points to become a blur of fang and steel. Move up to your Speed without provoking Opportunity Attacks and make one weapon attack against up to three different creatures you move within reach of. Each attack deals 5d10 + your Dexterity modifier bludgeoning damage on a hit. Bonus: each creature hit must succeed on a Strength saving throw against your ki save DC or be knocked Prone. For each creature reduced to 0 hit points, you regain 1 ki point.

AT LEVEL 7, STABBY HAS: Beast Breathing (Level 3 stance) + First Fang: Devour (Level 6, 3d8+DEX). The Level 11 and 17 features unlock as he grows.