

Ursa's Path Feats

Three feats — one for each road taken during the year apart

During the year apart, Ursa walked one of three roads — and came back changed by it. Each road grants a single feat reflecting what he sought and found. He gains the feat matching the path he chose.

THE LIVING WORLD — the road into the wild

Beast Handler

“You went out to learn the speech of wild things. You came back, and the wild things follow you home.”

Your bond with summoned and conjured creatures has deepened beyond ordinary druidcraft. You gain the following benefits.

- Mightier Summons. Whenever you cast the Summon Beast spell, you cast it as though using a spell slot of the highest level you can cast, without expending a higher-level slot. (The spell's effects scale to that level, but it still uses only a 2nd-level slot.)
- Wild Speech. You can communicate simple ideas to Beasts and your summoned creatures, and understand their responses in kind.

THE CIRCLE OF STARS — the road into the sky

Starlit Channeler

“You returned to the Circle, and the constellations answered — their light now runs down your arm and out through the staff.”

Starlight gathers readily to your hand, sharpening both your magic and your strikes. You gain the following benefits.

- Star-Touched Cantrip. You learn the True Strike cantrip. Wisdom is your spellcasting ability for it. When you cast it, you can make the attack with the staff or weapon you wield, and it deals Radiant damage instead of its normal type.
- Radiant Surge. Once on each of your turns when you deal Radiant damage with a druid spell or cantrip, you can add an extra 1d8 Radiant damage to one target of that spell.

THE FATHER'S TRAIL — the road east

Reader of Omens

“Your father read the sky the way other folk read a map. On his trail you learned his art — the omens no longer come at random, and you choose your moment.”

Prerequisite: the Cosmic Omen feature.

You have mastered the reading of celestial omens, and they bend to your timing. Your Cosmic Omen feature improves as follows.

- Both Omens. When you consult your Star Map after a Long Rest, you do not roll for a single omen. Instead, you gain access to both Weal and Woe until your next Long Rest.
- Read the Moment. You can wait to use your Cosmic Omen reaction until after the d20 is rolled, but before you know the outcome. You then choose whether to apply Weal (add 1d6 to the roll) or Woe (subtract 1d6 from the roll).
- Shared Tides. Your uses of Cosmic Omen remain a single pool equal to your Wisdom modifier (regaining all uses on a Long Rest). You may spend each use on either Weal or Woe.

Ursa gains the one feat matching the road he walked. These are special story feats and grant no ability score increase.
